

The Elks' carnival has monopolized the interest of those Salt Lake people who have been in the city, and the number of those still staying at the local resorts and on the coast is so large, that social affairs have been almost at a standstill.

Some delightful affairs have been given in honor of the visitors, notably the receptions held at the Ladies' Literary club house, and the Elks' club on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. The functions were in charge of the wives of local Elks, and were pleasant affairs throughout, the guests of honor expressing themselves as delighted with their entertainment. Besides these larger and more public events, there have been dinners and luncheons galore, quiet and informal, but nevertheless pleasant to both the entertainers and entertained.

Thursday's reception to the ladies of the visiting Elks was another delightful affair, the same pleasing informality being a feature of the event. Music and delicious refreshments were a part of the entertainment provided. The Salt Lake people in charge were, Mrs. H. E. Deardoff, chairman; Mrs. H. M. Wells, Mrs. E. Thompson, Mrs. Frank L. Gardner, Mrs. Henry Siegel, Mrs. D. S. Murray, Miss Buelah May Field, Mrs. George S. Nickum, Mrs. W. W. Hall, Mrs. John C. Laux, Mrs. C. C. Slade, Mrs. Elenbecker, Mrs. Arthur J. Davis, Mrs. R. A. Whitehead, Mrs. E. A. Smith, Miss Eva Thompson.

On Tuesday the visiting ladies were entertained at a reception at the Ladies' Literary club house, the rooms being prettily decorated for the occasion and delicious ices served. Mrs. Sam Park presided, and assisting her were Mesdames George A. Lowe, W. E. McCormick, Robert Harkness, David Keith, E. F. Holmes, W. A. Nelden, C. E. Allen, J. D. Adams, W. M. Ferris, George L. Nye, Miss Lowe.

A pretty wedding, although a very quiet one, was that of Miss Emma Lienhard and Mr. Henry Welte. The ceremony was performed at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon by Judge Emery Thordarson at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. H. Sadler, at which only the relatives of the families were present. The bride was unattended and wore a pretty going-away gown of gray broadcloth, with gloves and hat to match. Immediately after the reception the bride and groom left for a three-months' wedding trip in the south, where they will be the guests of the groom's relatives.

The reception which was to have been given Wednesday at the Ladies' Literary club house in honor of the visiting ladies was given instead at the Elks' new club house on State street, and a large number of visitors were present to enjoy the pleasant affair. The rooms were prettily decorated with flowers and palms, with the purple and white brilliantly intermingled, and delicious ices were served. Natchke's orchestra rendered delightful music during the reception, which was from 4 to 6. A number of well known Salt Lake women did the honors of the occasion, among them Mesdames Fred A. Hale, W. H. Dale, W. L. Ellerbeck, E. F.
